DIVING

The sheer abundance of marine life and clear visibility makes Thaa Atoll one of the greatest underwater regions on the planet. While around 25 sites in the Thaa Atoll are already chronicled, there are numerous unexplored channels and reefs, with the waters offering something for divers of all abilities. All divers are required to hold an International SCUBA diving license, which you will be asked to provide together with your logbook. COMO Maalifushi offers a range of PADI courses for those looking to earn their diving license.

Please refer to our diving rate sheet for more information on equipment rental, courses and dive trips.

CONSERVATION

CORAL PROPAGATION

In 1998 and 2016, the El Niño climate cycle resulted in particularly warm seas in the Indian Ocean, which bleached a large number of coral reefs surrounding COMO Maalifushi. While there is still a plethora of untouched reefs to snorkel and dive in the immediate area, it is important for the local economy that all the islands' coral flourishes.

Our Resident Marine Biologist has teamed up with Seamarc — a marine consultancy company — to plant new coral frames on the seafloor, which encourage new reefs to grow and prosper. Guests at COMO Maalifushi can sponsor one of these frames. This experience entails the making of the coral frame, with the option of also accompanying their guide to retrieve coral pieces. Guests can then track their coral frame's progress via twice-yearly photographic updates as well as complimentary guided snorkels every time they visit the resort.
